And said children should keep away from the above-mentioned places until the paralysis epidemic shall cease. By so doing the spread of the disease to our town may be prevented, and thus aid in preventing its spread in the state. (Signed) C. E. Comstock, chairman local board of health; O. W. Hodgdon, M. D., local health officer.

Thus far nothing has been done in furtherance of permanent street plans in Barre this summer, although proposals to build a cement highway on North Main street and to lay paving along South Main street have been sanctioned by the city council. For several reasons the cement roadway proposed is regarded as the project more likely of completion in 1917, but bids have not been received and at the present time there is talk of going ahead with the work under the personal supervision of Supt. A. G. Perry of the street department. There has been a delay in completing the new stonecrushing plant off Blackwell street and until the apparatus is in operation little can be accomplished in the way of permanent work.

Attorneys R. A. Hoar and A. G. Fay motored to Chelsea this afternoon to be present at the resumption of Orange county court, which was to come in at 2 o'clock after a recess of a week. According to plans announced by Judge F. M. Butler, the first matter to be considered was the question of releasing Mrs. Anna Felch, recently acquitted of a charge of having murdered her husband, Joseph Felch, of Topham. The prosecution has decided to take the case to supreme court on exceptions and a question as to whether the respondent is to be at liberty under bail or on her own recognizance was to be settled to-day. Since her acquittal Mrs. Felch has been in the custody of Jailer George Tracy, although not confined in close jail.

Among the guests arriving at Hotel Barre through the week end were the following people: Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Batchelder and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Underwood of Barton, W. A. Shannon, C. M. Shannon, C. G. Barre motorists returning home from trips in eastern Vermont and western New Hampshire last evening encountered a congestion of traffic between Bradford and Waits River, where a successful search for the body of a Polisher in the river had been made. News of the man's death while in bathing brought automobile owners from miles around to the spot where the drowning occurred and for a time many people were engaged in the search for the boy. Among those who passed the scene just as the body was found were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Brock and F. H. Rogers and party.

Scarcity of teams and labor is interfering somewhat seriously with the plans of the water department for improvements to be made this season at Orange and Bolster reservoir. Work on the cleaning project at Bolster, which has been shut off as a source of the city's supply for several months as the result of a break in the spillway, has been retarded because the necessary teams could not be hired to proceed with the plan of clearing the basin of weeds and other accumulations. At the Orange reservoir, department employees are engaged in cutting the hay among the thousands of seedlings set out in the past few years. The seedlings transplanted in May are thriving.

Black flies hovering in clouds over every little pond in Marshfield, Plainfield and Groton wrought havoc with the plans of several week-end parties yesterday and in one instance fishermen who expected to spend most of their time in boats were compelled to turn in their tracks and return home. A party of men which included George Marsh, local agent for the American Express Co., George Beattie, Joseph Bainbridge and John Mahoney, express drivers, were driven from the environs of Bancroft pond Saturday afternoon because the flies were so thick, and when they struck in toward Pigeon pond, the pests were so hungry that the fishermen were obliged to retire a second time. In years past most of the ponds have been free from black flies after the Fourth, but this season proves to be an exception.
